

The Wedding Shawl

The Wedding Shawl on size 35s. It is so named cause I knit it wear to a wedding....Pick Three yarns. This one was done in a variegated Llama/Wool mix, a novelty with some silk in it, and a lime mohair yarn. I then beaded the fringe which makes it more yummy. There were about 200 yards of each yarn (but it wasn't even)and they were held together throughout. The shawl is 30" long and about 48" from side to side.....But on to the pattern.

CO3

Row 1: Knit one, make one, knit one, make one, knit one.

Row 2 and all even rows, knit.

Row 3 and all odd rows: K1, make 1, knit to one stitch before end of row, make 1, k1.

Continue until you have only enough yarn left to bind off loosely in all yarns. You may leave some for fringe - in the case of mine it just worked out that I had enough of two of the yarns to fringe it. You could also fringe with a matching ribbon or other yarns. Add beads to the fringe.

A Generous Customer who wishes to remain anonymous has come up with a delicious shrug pattern - actually a swrug - sweater/shrug: